Curfew Must Not Ring To-Night.

England's sun was slowly setting o'er the hills
so far away,
Filling all the land with leniency at the close of one day;
And the twilight rays kissed the forehead of a man
and maiden fair,
The with steps so slow and weakened, she with trembling, floating hair,
The with the lowest level, and thoughtful, she with lips so cold and white, Struggling to keep back the merriment, "Curfew must not ring to-night."
"Sexton," the white lips faltered, pointing to the prison cell,
With its walls so dim and gloomy—walls so dark, and damp, and cold—
"I've a lover in that prison, doomed this very night to die.
At the ringing of the Curfew, and no earthly help is nigh, Crownwell will not come till sunset, and his face grew strangely white,
A sickly smile, a weak whisper, "Curfew must not ring to-night."
"Hush!" the white lips faltered—every word placed her young heart
Like a thousand gleaming arrows, like a deadly poisoned dart;
"Long, long years I've rung the Curfew from that gloomy shadowed tower;
Every evening just at sunset, it has told the twilight hour;
I have done my duty ever, tried to do it just
and right,
Now I'm old, I will not miss it; girl, the Cur-few rings to-night!"
With her eyes and lips so features, stern and while her thoughtful brow,
And within her heart's deep center, Bosie
made a solemn vow:
She had listened while the judges read, without a tear or sigh,
"At the ringing of the Curfew—Bosie understood well the meaning,
And her heart came fast and faster, and her eyes grew large and bright—
One moment she spoke—spoken—"Curfew must not ring to-night!"
She with light step bounded forward, sprang within the old church door, Left the old man coming slowly, faintly, he tried to stop before;
Not one moment paused the maiden, but with her cheek and lips aglow,
Staggered by the glowing tower, where the bell
was rung to rest;
Then she climbed the lofty ladder, dark, with its rays of light, Upward still, her pale lips saying, "Curfew
shall not ring to-night!"
She had reached the topmost ladder, o'er her hanging the great dark bell,
And the awful gloom beneath her, like the pathway down to hell;
See, the pendulum swinging, the hour of Curfew was striking,
And the night bell chimed her bosom, stopped
her breath and paled her brow,
Still she sat there, so, never her eyes flash
with a gleam of light,
As she sprang and grasped it firmly—"Curfew
shall not ring to-night!"
On she swung, far out, the city seemed a tiny
speck below;
There 'twas heaven and earth suspended,
As the bell swung to and fro;
And the half-dead, faint ringing (years he had not heard the bell),
And he thought the twilight Curfew rang
young Bosie's funeral knell,
Still the maiden clinging tightly, cheek and
brow so pale and white,
Still her frightened heart's will beating—
Curfew shall not ring to-night!"
It was over—the bell ceased swinging, and the
maiden stepped once more Firmly on the damp old ladder, where for hundreds of years she had stood;
Bosie felt not that she was planted; and what
she thought she had done,
Should be told in long years after—the rays
of setting sun,
Light the sky with yellow beauty, aged eyes
with heads of white,
Told their children why the Curfew did not
ring that one and night.
O'er the distant hills came Crownwell, Bosie
saw him, and her bow,
Late the sky with yellow beauty, aged eyes
with heads of white,
At his feet she told her story, showed her hands
all bruised and torn;
And her sweet young face so haggard, with
dark, look so sad and worn,
Touched his heart with sudden pity—his
eyes with misty light;
"Go, my love, live!" cried Crownwell, "Cur-few shall not ring to-night."

The Curfew Heroine.

It lacked but half an hour of Curfew toll. The old bell-ringer came from under the walled roof of his cottage stoop and stood with uncer-eased head in the clear, sweet-scented
air. He had grown blind and deaf in the service, but his arm was as muscular as ever, and he who listened to the day marked no falling of the heavy metallic throbs of the cathedral bell. Old Jasper had lived through many changes. He had lived out his notes of mourning for good Queen Bess, and with tears secretly he had rung the glad chime of the coronation of James.
Charles had been crowned, resigned and explained his weakness before England in Jasper's army; and now he, who under his arm held all the town over in the hollow of his hand, ruled as more than monarch, and still the old man, with the habit of a long life upon him rang his matin his sorrow.
Jasper stood alone now, lifting his dimmed eyes up to the softly dappled sky.
The walls of his memory seemed so written over—so erased and replaced by the annals of the years that had gone before—that there seemed little room for anything in the present. Little reckoned he that Crownwell's spokesman who came on the moor beyond the village; that Crownwell himself rode with his guardians a league away; he only knew that the bell that had been rung in the tower when William the Conqueror made a curfew a law, had been spared by Puritan and Round-head, and that his arm for sixty years had never failed him at evening.
He was moving with slow steps toward the gate, when a small white steed hurriedly from the street and stood beside him a lovely woman but with face so blanched that it seem carved in the whitest marble with all its roundness and dimples
Her great solemn eyes were raised to the aged face in puffed appeal, and the lips were forming words that he could not understand.
"Speak up, lass; I am deaf and cannot hear your elation."
The voice raised, and the hands clapped and unclapped, and rung themselves together, pain and pain.
"For heaven's sake, Jasper, do not ring the curfew to-night!"
"What, not ring, curfew? Ye must be deaf, lassie!"
"Jasper, for sweet heaven's sake, for my sake, for one night in all your long life, forget to ring the bell. Fall this once, and my lover shall live, whom Crownwell says shall die at curfew toll. Do you hear? my lover Richard Temple. See, Jasper, here is my money to make your old age happy. I sold my jewels that the Lady Maud gave me, and the gold shall all be yours for our curfew."

"Would ye bribe me, Lily de Vere?
Ye're a changeling. Ye've no the blood of the de Vere in ye. The de Vere's mother had a white curfew bell-ringing under her Majesty, good Queen Bess? Not for all the gold that Lady Maud could bring me! What is your lover to me?
Bosie have been born and strong men have died before now at the ringing of my bell. Awa!"
And out on the village green, with the solemn shadows of the heavens lengthening over it, a strong man awaited the curfew to tell for his death. He stood, handsome and brave and tall—taller by an inch than the tallest pikeman who guarded him.
What had he done that he should die? Little it mattered to the great Crownwell, well-wisher to the de Vere line, what he or others had done. He had been sent to the late Lord up at the castle and Lady Maud, forgetting that a man must woo and women must wait, had given her heart to him without the asking, while the gentle Lily de Vere, distant kind-woman and poor companion to her,
had, without seeking, found the treasure of his true love and held them fast. Then he had joined the army and made one of the pious soldiers whose passions were never stirred but by sign or symbol of piety.
But a scorned woman's hatred had reached him even there. Enemies and deep plots had compassed him about and conquered him. To-night he was to die.
The beautiful world lay as a vivid picture before him. The dark green wood above the rocky hills where Robin Hood and his merry men had dwelt; the frowning castle with its drawings and square towers; the tower stretch of moor with its purple shadows upon it; the green, straight valleys of the village; the bird overhead, even the daisies at his feet he saw.
But, ah! more vividly than all, he saw the great red sun with its long veil hanging about the trees, as though it plucked him with more than human pity.
He was a God-fearing and a God-serving man. He had long made his peace with heaven. Nothing stood between him and the door of peace, and he was ready to enter
it. The night bell chimed her bosom, stopped her breath and paled her brow,
Still she sat there, so, never her eyes flash
with a gleam of light,
As she sprang and grasped it firmly—"Curfew
shall not ring to-night!"
On she swung, far out, the city seemed a tiny
speck below;
There 'twas heaven and earth suspended,
As the bell swung to and fro;
And the half-dead, faint ringing (years he
had not heard the bell),
And he thought the twilight Curfew rang
young Bosie's funeral knell,
Still the maiden clinging tightly, cheek and
brow so pale and white,
Still her frightened heart's will beating—
Curfew shall not ring to-night!"
It was over—the bell ceased swinging, and the
maiden stepped once more
Firmly on the damp old ladder, where for hundreds of years she had stood;
Bosie felt not that she was planted; and what
she thought she had done,
Should be told in long years after—the rays
of setting sun,
Light the sky with yellow beauty, aged eyes
with heads of white,
Told their children why the Curfew did not
ring that one and night.
O'er the distant hills came Crownwell, Bosie
saw him, and her bow,
Late the sky with yellow beauty, aged eyes
with heads of white,
At his feet she told her story, showed her hands
all bruised and torn;
And her sweet young face so haggard, with
dark, look so sad and worn,
Touched his heart with sudden pity—his
eyes with misty light;

few shall not ring to-night."

to the death. It tore her, and wounded and bruised; but there in the sol-em twilight the brave woman
swung, and fought with the curfew;
and God gave her victory.
The old bell-ringer said to himself:
"Aye, Huldah, my work is done.
The pulleys are getting too heavy for me. My arms, my eyes, my feet have all failed me. I can't carry one stroke of the curfew. Dear old bell, it is my eyes have gone false and not you.
Farewell, old friend!"
And just beyond the tower paved
a shadowy form again Bosie had seen him. There were drops of blood upon the white garments, and the face was like the face of one who walked in her sleep, and the hands hung wounded and powerless at his side.
Crownwell paused with his horsemen under the dismantled Maypole before the village green. He saw the man who was to die at sunset standing up in the dusky air, tall as a king and beautiful as Absalom.
He gazed with wonder, awe and anguish, but his lips did not give utterance to the quick command that trembled on them, for a girl came tiding towards him. Pkeman and Archer stepped aside to let her pass.
She threw herself upon the turf at his horse's feet, she lifted his blood-stained and tortured hands to his gaze,
and once more poured out her prayer for the life of her lover; with trembling lips she told him why Richard still lived—why the curfew had not sounded.
Lady Maud, looking out of her lat-ticed window at the castle, saw the great Protector dismount, lift the fainting form in his arms and bear her to her lover. She saw the guards stand in amazement, and heard the shouts of joy at his deliverance.
The scene out of the night that she had seen out of her envious eye and sculptured her in its gloom.
At the next matin bell old Jasper died, and at curfew toll he was laid in the earth. His wife who had been young, but the memory of whom had been with him always.

THE OLD LAWYER'S STORY.

SEMI-WEEKLY SOUTH KENTUCKIAN, TUESDAY AUGUST 10, 1888.

CHAS. M. McCREARY, Editor.

The Democratic State ticket in Kansas has a colored man on it—W. D. Kelley, for Auditor.

Every Democrat who ever ran for the Presidency is dead with the single exception of the present incumbent.

Ex-Gov. Jas. B. McCreary has been re-nominated for Congress, with-out opposition, by the Democrats of the Eighth district.

The last bill signed by the President before the adjournment of Congress was that accepting the Grant relics, tendered to the government by Mrs. Grant and the late Wm. H. Vanderbilt.

Miss Gibson, the Republican candidate for School Superintendent in Ohio county, was defeated by about 200 majority. The whole Democratic ticket was elected with the possible exception of H. B. Kinsolving for County Attorney.

A disease is ravaging the towns of Madison, Chippewa Falls and Milwaukee, Wis., which the local physicians pronounced Asiatic cholera. The State Board of Health is inclined to doubt that it is cholera but will investigate.

The Democratic State ticket of five Supreme Court Judges was elected in Tennessee last week by nearly 40,000 majority. In almost every county, excepting Sullivan, there were heavy Democratic gains.

Zeno Young came back from Florida and took charge of the Madisonville Times just in time to put in some good looks for the Democrats. The splendid victory achieved for the ticket is due largely to the effective work done by the editor of the Times.

John Able eloped from Jefferson county to Jeffersonville, where he married Miss Friday, and they were married. The girl's father objected because the would-be son-in-law was a farm hand, but John wanted the girl and he married her probably because he was Able.

The Kansas Democrats have nominated Mr. Moonlight for Governor. As Kansas is now serving a term for Republicanism in the first degree, Mr. M. will have to shed a good deal of moonshine into the race if he expects to be elected. It is presumed he intends to make a still hunt.

Gov. Knott has appointed the following trustees for the Colored State Normal School: Clarence U. McElroy, of Bowling Green; Judge J. C. Shurill, of Louisville; and John O. Hodges, of Lexington. The last Legislature appropriated $7,000 towards building a house, and $3,000 to employ teachers. The trustees will advertise for bids from the various cities desiring the school and the city that can raise the most money, other advantages considered, will get it.

Mr. Tilden was 72 years, 5 months and 26 days old at the time of his death. He held various important trusts in the State of New York and caused the exposure of the corrupt "Tammany ring" and the canal rings. He was elected Governor in 1871 by 50,000 majority, and in 1876 was nominated by the Democrats for President. He received a majority of the popular and electoral votes but was "counted out" by the Republican returning boards and the Electoral Commission. In 1877 he retired to private life.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland are for Stone.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Congressman Stone called on the President today to tell him good-bye. They had quite a cordial chat, and when the captain said: "I come to thank you for your kind treatment of me and to tell you good-bye."

The president replied: "I am glad of the opportunity to treat you kindly, and I do most earnestly hope you will be re-elected."

As they shook hands, Capt. Stone said: "Give my regards to Mrs. Cleveland, and tell her good-bye for me."

"Can't you stop as you go down and call on my wife; she will be glad to see you," said his Excellency. The Captain did call and Mrs. Cleveland entertained him charmingly for half an hour. She discussed politics fully and was a thorough Democrat, as was her father and grandfather before her. She gave the "Gibraltar" Congressman a most kindly good-bye. Capt. Stone thinks Mrs. Cleveland is the cream of creation.

Prohibition in Kentucky.

There are in Kentucky twenty counties and 252 districts in other counties trying this mode of doing away with the liquor traffic. Twenty seven other counties will vote upon prohibition this year, under special acts passed by the last Legislature. There are three counties in which liquor is not allowed to be sold on election days. The aggregate number of counties in which local option prevails, or is likely to prevail, is 46. The voting population covered by the law is estimated at 1,319,418, or nearly five-eighths of the votes cast in the last gubernatorial race. Prohibition has gained a pretty strong foothold in the State during the last five years.

A DISTRICT PRIMARY.

The Congressional Committee of the Second District Orders a Vote September 18.

(Henderson Journal.)

Pursuant to call the Congressional District Committee met at the Barrett House in this city Thursday afternoon. The following counties were represented as named: Davless, Ed. P. Millett; Union, Henry D. Allen; Hopkins, J. H. Prewitt, proxy; Christian, S. G. Backner; Webster, J. E. Hunter; McLean, J. H. Prewitt, proxy; Hancock, H. C. Boyd, proxy; Henderson, A. T. Dudley.

The chair named A. T. Dudley as secretary of the meeting.

The chair questioned the right of the members from the different counties to be represented by proxies, and called on the members to decide the question. After some discussion it was unanimously agreed to let the proxies stand.

Mr. Boyd, from Hancock county, moved that a primary for the whole district be held on the same day. Judge Dudley objected and proposed precinct meetings and county delegate conventions of any description.

Mr. Allen favored making no recommendations as to how counties are to select delegates or cast their votes—leaving each county to take such method as it may see fit. Mr. Millett favored a primary.

The vote being put on Mr. Allen's substitute resulted: Ayes, Union and Henderson. Nays, Davless, Webster, Christian, McLean, Hancock and Hopkins. Lost.

The vote was then put on Mr. Boyd's motion to have one general primary for the whole district as one. Ayes, Davless, Webster, Christian, McLean, Hancock and Hopkins. Nays, Union and Henderson.

Mr. Prewitt moved that the primary be held on Saturday, September 11th. Amended by Mr. Allen to September 25th. The vote on the amendment stood, ayes, Davless, Union, Hancock and Henderson. Nays, Webster, Hopkins, Christian and McLean. Declared lost by the chair.

Mr. Prewitt withdrew his motion and then by unanimous consent the date was fixed for Saturday, September 18.

The following was then offered by Judge Dudley:

Resolved, That the votes of only such persons who at the last Presidential election voted for Cleveland, or who not then voting have uniformly affiliated with the Democratic party, and of those persons who will arrive at twenty-one years of age or over at the coming Congressional election, and who are Democrats and declare their intention to vote for the Democratic nominee at such election, shall be received at such primary.

Mr. Millett moved as an amendment to strike out that part allowing minors to vote who had never cast a Democratic vote. The vote being put on Mr. Millett's amendment stood: Ayes, Davless and Webster. Nays, Hopkins, Christian, Union, McLean, Hancock and Henderson. The resolution as offered by Judge Dudley was then passed unanimously.

On motion it was resolved that the committee meet again at the Barrett house on Monday, September 27th, to examine the poll-books and declare the result.

A motion that the county committee name the officers of election for their respective counties was passed.

Mr. Millett was, on motion, appointed a committee of one to confer with the candidates as to raising funds for defraying the necessary expenses of the primary.

Judge Dudley then read a formal call for the primary, which, after some discussion and alterations, was unanimously adopted in the following form:

Resolved, That for the purpose of ascertaining the will of the Democrats of this, the Second Congressional district, for the office of Congressman from such district, a Democratic primary election is hereby called, which primary shall be held in each county of such district at the various primary voting precincts therein on the 18th day of September, 1888, between the hours of 6 o'clock a. m. and 7 o'clock p. m., and the primary poll-books shall be returned within three days thereafter to the chairman or secretary of each county committee, and the chairman, or their duly authorized proxies, shall meet at the Barrett House, in the city of Henderson, Ky., on the 27th day of September, 1888, count the vote and ascertain the candidate receiving the highest number of votes, who shall be declared the nominee.

On motion, the committee adjourned.

THE RECORD OF CONGRESS.

Adjournment August 5.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—All of the appropriation bills and the river and harbor bill have received the approval of the President, with the exception of the fortification bill, which is now conceded to be a failure.

Since the completion of the United Press resume of the proceedings of this Congress up to Monday morning last, there have been added to the 2,881 bills introduced and referred to committees a half dozen private bills in the Senate, and to the 1,131 bills reported from Senate committees about eighteen reports, all relating to private bills.

The committees in the House have also done some work since Monday morning. They have added to the 3,417 reports made on bills, and have also added slightly to the 9,988 bills introduced and referred. Most of the reports made were on bills which received action in committees last week.

(Quite a grist of executive communications in the form of departmental information have been received by both houses this week, ordered printed and referred, and will be given attention at the next session. Only the leading committees of either house have been at work during the past month, as it became evident months ago that none but private pension and a very few general bills could receive action. It is said that more committee work will be wasted by this than any two former Congresses; that exclusive of pension bills less than 3 per cent. of the measures introduced will become laws, while the average in former Congresses was over 6 per cent.; that of the Forty-eighth Congress being a fraction above 8 per cent. of the bills introduced. The President has increased the number of bills vetoed from 107 to 111.

The only measure of general interest outside of the appropriations passed this week was the Morrison surplus resolution. The time has been consumed, as anticipated, in the consideration of conference reports. It was hoped that an agreement would be reached upon the bill repealing the pre-emption, timber-culture and desert-land act, but that, with the conference on the Northern Pacific land forfeiture, fortifications, Mexican pension and two or three other measures, goes over to the next session.

The usual authority to sit during the recess of Congress has been granted to the House Committee on Appropriations, and the clerks of the committee will be at work compiling the bills for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889, at least six weeks before Congress meets in December.

Early in February it is expected the appropriation bills will begin to reach the house from its committee, and as they will be devoid of anything further than the routine expenditure, can readily be disposed of. The time of the session before these measures are reached will be consumed by the bills indicated by the resume published on Monday last.

Congress adjourned at 3 o'clock on the 5th last.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—During the session of the Senate, which ended yesterday, the President sent to that body 2,450 nominations to office, including withdrawals and renominations. There were altogether about 150 withdrawals, most of them being either to correct some error in the name, or to change the character of the nomination. There were but few permanent withdrawals. The Senate rejected twenty-seven of the President's appointments, and forty-one of them remain over unacted upon by the Senate.

ACTION OF THE PRESIDENT ON BILLS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The following statement shows the action taken by the President on the various measures presented to him:

Whole number of bills received by the President during the session, 1,065; approved, 814; became laws without signature, 157; vetoed, 115; failed for want of signature at time of adjournment, ten days not having expired, 9; total, 1,065.

Of this number the following were pension bills: Approved, 491; became laws without signature, 154; vetoed 101; failed for want of signature, 1. Total, 747.

(Manufacturer's Record.)

Proposals will be received until September 1, by John McLeod, Contractor-Journal building, Louisville, for the grading and masonry of the Louisville Southern Railroad from Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railroad, about 84 miles.

Samuel P. Webb & Co., Nashville, Tenn., have bought the lease of the Wallace coal lands at Caseyville, Ky., and will improve them and build a tram road.

George M. Fleicher and John M. Bass, of Nashville, Tenn., are in Owensboro, Ky., prospecting with a view to building a street railroad.

The State School Fund.

FRANKFORT, Aug. 6.—The Superintendent of Public Instruction announces that the per capita for the current school year will be the same as last year—$1.65 for both white and colored schools. The increase in the school census during the year has been 14,053 white and 3,183 colored children, a total of 17,236. To keep up the per capita to last year's figure, with this increase in the number of beneficiaries, shows the amount of the fund to be $29,497.70 larger than last year.

BEVERLY.

The lecture is over, and all is once more quiet on the Potomac. I'll pen you a few lines from our very interesting neighborhood, which at present is unusually dry.

I don't know much about politics, I do know I am a Democrat. But "that has nothing to do with this case, tra-la." I am sorry only a few of us were elected. However, we can console ourselves, that in all probability, we will have another chance, non despero.

Wanted, a postman at Beverly. The brandance at Longview the 5th, was a decided success. The crowd was select and so was the dinner. The young gentlemen who managed the affair should feel highly elated and come again.

Mrs. Jesse Harris and Rev. Josiah Carneal were in the neighborhood on a flying visit last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carneal, from Caskey, smiled in on us last week. Their visit was short and sweet and was a gentle reminder that all things bright must fade.

Misses Lelia Steger and Lula Pierce are visiting Mrs. M. L. Steger. Our crops are slightly discolored, but still in the ring. We have had no rain yet, to do any good.

Somebody has been playing a game at "wet or dry" and "dry or wet." The little "two for" L. A. & T. R. L. is "O. K." again and just too sweet for anything.

For fear you will shed tears over the length of this, I will give you a rest. TEMPEST.

EDITOR SOUTH KENTUCKIAN:

Believing that many of your readers would like to know what the "who have read" "Bible-Marriage" think of it, we will say that although the book has been out such a short time, numbers of people have read it. Copies of it have been purchased and carried to other towns and other counties, and persons of all denominations say the author is correct in thinking the Bible does not forbid polygamy, except to the clergy. Old ladies who have loved and read their Bible for forty years, read the book and frankly admit this. Able lawyers read it and say the author's positions are supported so thoroughly by scriptural quotations that they cannot be refuted. Fully nine-tenths of the sensible, well-educated men who have given the book an impartial perusal agree with the author. Let every lover of truth and human liberty read the little book and see how plain this matter is—it will require only a few hours.

POND RIVER.

ANTHONY ROAD, Ky., Aug. '86. On Monday last old Wilson pre-empted under Democratic by a large majority. Judge West was on hand and worked like a beaver. Mr. Robt. Hunter, of the firm of Hunter & Wilson, made his appearance in the afternoon and I suppose a Democratic gain was the result. The scales are falling from our colored brethren's eyes, and four years hence, they will be found with the Democrats battling for the right.

Corn and tobacco have been greatly benefited by the recent rains. The following Pond Riverans took the barabecue at Pembroke: Jimmie Rose and family, Grundy Denton and Wesley McEacham, Jr.

Pond River is a white man's country and will continue. To persons wishing cheap homes I would recommend this country.

HEADACHE POSITIVELY CURED.

Thousands of cases of sick and nervous headaches are cured every year by the use of TURNER'S TREATMENT. Mrs. J. A. Turner, of New Orleans, says: "TURNER'S TREATMENT completely cured me, and I think it has no equal for curing all symptoms arising from a disordered stomach or nervous debility. For female ailments, there is nothing like it."

Young or old, if you are suffering from general debility of the system, headache, backache, pain in one or both sides, general lassitude, bearing-down pains in the abdomen, flashes of heat, palpitation of the heart, smothering in the throat, fainting sensations, nervous debility, trembling, neuralgia, wakefulness, loss of power, memory and appetite, or weakness of a private nature, we will guarantee to cure you with from 1 to 3 packages of the treatment. And a lifetime tonic is an equal.

NERVOUSNESS!

Whether caused from overwork of the brain or from general debility, it is cured by TURNER'S TREATMENT. It is composed of three parts: 1. A special diet, 2. A special medicine, 3. A special tonic. It is a complete cure for nervousness, and it is the only one that will cure the blood.

DYSPEPSIA!

Strengthening the nerves and restoring vital power, this discovery has never been equalled. Laxative and cathartic will not cure it. Each package contains over one month's treatment. The TREATMENT, with some late discoveries, has been used for over 30 years by Dr. Turner in St. Louis, in private and hospital practice.

Price Turner's Treatment, per package (three packages mailed to you on receipt of price). Thousands of cases of diseases mentioned above have been cured with one package, and knowing as we do the wonderful curative effects, the TREATMENT having been used in private practice for 30 years in St. Louis, we will send our written guarantee to refund the money if the TREATMENT does not effect a cure. Send money to Dr. Turner, 101 North Third Street, St. Louis, Mo.
